McDonald-McGee

Smithfield, Jan. 1st. A quiet but elegant marriage was solemnized in this city at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Roger Smith, Wednesday at 3 o'clock when Miss Elizabeth McGee and Cornelius T. McDonald, of Augusta, Ga., were joined together. Rev. W. M. Baker, of Mount Olive, a former pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony.

The attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith was particularly appealing on this occasion with its decorations of cut flowers, holly and evergreens. The marriage took place in the music room where a temporary altar of pine, cedar and fern had been arranged.

The wedding music was played by Miss Louise Alford. Paul Eason sang "O, Promise Me" just before the bridal party entered.

The bride was attended by Miss Louise Davis, of Mount Olive, as brides maid, and Mrs. Roger Smith as dame of honor, and by her maid of honor, Miss Sadie McDonald, of Maxton. The handsome costumes of these fair attendants, all of whom carried pink Killarney roses made a beautiful picture. The ring bearer was little Miss Claire Davis, cousin of the bride. The bride, who wore a handsome traveling gown, entered on the arm of her brother, J. E. McGee, of Rosemary, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom and his best man, Dan McDonald, of Spartanburg, S. C. After the ceremony was performed, the couple left for a trip to Florida and Cuba.

Mrs. McDonald is a young woman of rare charm. She is a graduate of Peace Institute and has taught at Farmville and at the orphanage at Barium Springs. Mr. McDonald is a prosperous furniture dealer of Augusta, Ga., where they will make their home. His original home is Maxton, Greensboro Daily News.

Mrs. McDonald is well known in Rosemary, having been a resident for about a year and a half. She is a sister of Mr. Jas. E. McGee.

Fire and Explosion at Roanoke Fibre Board Sunday Night

A fire and explosion occurred at the plant of the Roanoke Fibre Board Sunday night about 10:30. People on the streets noticed a glare in the direction of the plant, but thought someone was burning brush. The glare proved to be a blaze which had started in the storage shed and oil house. No one up town attached much importance to the blaze until a terrific explosion occurred, shaking practically every house in town and waking many sleeping inhabitants. The explosion proved to be three tanks of acetylene.

A large crowd was soon at the scene of the fire, but most of them did not seem anxious to get too close fearing another explosion. However members of the local police force lead by R. H. Jackson unhesitatingly went to the aid of the management and assisted in extinguishing the fire and for this assistance the management of the plant wishes to express thanks. The damage is estimated at $700.

WHY COTTON DECLINED AND PLANS FOR RELIEF

Dr. B. W. Kilgore Analyzes Situation and Suggests Measure to Meet it.

In response to a request from Harvie Jordan, Secretary of the American Cotton Association, St. Mathews, S. C., Director B. W. Kilgore of the N. C. Extension Service and Experiment Station, has analyzed the cause of the recent heavy decline in cotton values and outlined plans for relief as follows:

The main reasons which have contributed to the recent heavy decline in the market value of cotton are restriction of markets for cotton; the currency deflation program; the general fall in the prices of farm products, and the farm program of the cotton states which necessitates credit for the production of the cotton crop and the purchase of large quantities of supplies in the way of fertilizers, food and feed stuffs, and the like.

The best plans for relief are a thoroughly practical and scientific plan for the warehousing and the commodity marketing of cotton which will insure the pooling and selling of cotton on the basis of grade and staple; and along with this the production of an abundance of food and feed for all persons and animals on the farm, and at least some to spare for town people, if not enough to feed them also, so as to make cotton a really surplus crop. The South can and must produce enough food and feed for all the people and livestock of the South, and this should include enough livestock of the various kinds to meet the needs of the South for livestock products.

The cotton acreage for 1921 should be reduced, but the amount of reduction will likely need to be somewhat different in the different cotton states, and depending on the farming program generally now followed in these states, and in a general way to conform with the statements made in the preceding paragraph.

COUNCIL-DAUGHTRY

The following clipping from the Augusta, Ga., Chronicle is of much interest.

No marriage of the season will be the occasion of more cordial good wishes and sincere congratulations than that of Miss Jean Daughtry and Mr. Gordon Stuart Council, of North Carolina, which occurred yesterday morning at one o'clock at St. Paul's Church, Rev. G. S. Whitney officiating.

While the engagement was an open secret to their friends, no date had been set and no cards sent, and the wedding was a very quiet one with only a few close friends and relatives present.

The bride's blonde beauty was enhanced by a smart coat suit of midnight blue and dark velvet hat. She was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Irvin Alexander, and the only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Arrington. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left for Richmond, Va., and will later be at home at Rosemary N. C.

Mrs. Council is the daughter of Mr. and L. G. Daughtry and her mother before marriage was Miss Lizzie Alexander of this city. She is a lovely and charming girl and one who has always been popular with both girls and men and has enjoyed a flattering amount of attention from her childhood. Her friends will hate to give her up, but will follow her to her new home with most loving wishes for her happiness.

Mr. Council was in Augusta at Camp Hancock with the Machine Gun School and made many friends here then. He is a member of a well known Carolina family and a most successful young business man.
